David W. Fraley grew up in the communities of Oakland and Alameda, California. As a teen-ager he became a member of the Oakland First Church of the Nazarene. During World War II, Dave served in the Signal Corps in both New Guinea and The Philippines.

At San Jose State University, Dave met June and offered her a ride home to Alameda, where she, too, had grown up. Dave and June were married in 1948.

Dave's teaching career began at the California School for the Deaf in 1949, where he became fluent in sign language. During his tenure, Dave also served as coach for track, football and basketball. Dave later became Athletic Director at the school, a position he held until his retirement in 1984. June began teaching in Alameda, California in 1969, and continued teaching second and third grade classes until she retired in 1992.
